ABSTRACT (upto 300 words)

Nowadays, the number of women entrepreneurship has been growing rapidly especially in the sector of small-medium enterprises in Indonesia. This has become the culture for women to start creating their own business and be independent woman. Analyzing factors that may increase women empowerment is notable. This study aims to analyze two influencing factors of women empowerment which are entrepreneurship training as an external factor and psychological well-being as an internal factor towards women empowerment in the context of women entrepreneurs in the Small Medium Enterprises (SMEs) sector in Indonesia. This study uses quantitative research methods through multiple regression analysis to explain the truth of the research hypothesis by using an online questionnaire. A total of 200 respondents who are women entrepreneurs of SMEs spread across various regions in Indonesia participated in this study. The results show a significant positive relationship between entrepreneurship training and psychological well-being in women empowerment.
